ORDER

This matter came before the Court on petitioner’s motion or application for a temporary restraining order and for a preliminary injunction. The Court considered the matter as one for preliminary injunction, reviewed the motion, the government’s opposition to the motion, and defendants’ reply, and heard the argument of counsel. Upon consideration of the foregoing and for the reasons stated in open court, the Court concluded that petitioner had not met the standards for a preliminary injunction and particularly that his irreparable harm argument was speculative and conjectural. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner’s motion or application for a temporary restraining order and for a preliminary injunction is DENIED.

SO ORDERED.

PAUL L. FRIEDMAN
United States District Judge
