Upon further review, the Court now issues this Errata Order to correct the following typographical, editing, and grammatical errors:

- On page 5, last sentence, "January 2001" replaced by "January 2002";
- On page 8, sixth sentence, "certain customary international law" replaced by "certain international law";
- On page 18, second sentence, "the petitioners contend also that Rasul holds” replaced by “the petitioners contend that Rasul also holds”;

- On page 28, fifth sentence, “Even though, the United States Supreme Court” replaced by “The United States Supreme Court”;
- On page 31, second sentence, “to capture and initially detain them were unlawful orders” replaced by “to capture and initially detain them were lawful orders”;
- On page 32, first line, “the treatment that they are deserved” replaced by “the treatment that they deserve”; and
- On page 34, first and second line, “either Constitutional amendments, appropriate international entities” replaced by “either Constitutional amendments, federal laws, or treaties with the appropriate international entities.”

The corrected January 19th Memorandum Opinion and Order is attached to this Errata Order and will substitute, in all respects, for the uncorrected version.

SO ORDERED.
